Expanding Contraceptive Choice: Integrating Injectables into NGO Family Planning Services

This special booklet, published by CEDPA/India under the ENABLE project, was created to enable non-governmental organizations (NGOs) to expand their list of contraceptive methods and introduce injectables as an additional contraceptive option. Since 1986, the injectable contraceptive DMPA has been legal in India and has been commercially available to women. The safety and effectiveness of DMPA has been repeatedly documented over the past forty years in Western and developing countries. This publication serves as a guide for other NGOs interested in incorporating DMPA into their program activities. ### Training Manual Series: “Integrating Reproductive Health & HIV/AIDS for NGOs, Faith-based Organizations and Community-based Organizations”

Volume I: Family Planning Plus: HIV/AIDS Basics for NGOs and FP Program Managers

This manual provides both NGO staff and communities at large with a deeper understanding of the dynamics and impact of HIV/AIDS. It also sensitizes participants to the issues and challenges faced by people living with HIV/AIDS. Topics include modes of transmission and prevention, cultural and social factors contributing to the spread of HIV/AIDS, health issues of the immune system and disease progression, and strategies for coping and living with HIV/AIDS. (May 2003)

Volume II: Faith Community Responses to HIV/AIDS

This manual provides an overview to religious leaders and church groups about the HIV/AIDS pandemic, as well as issues and challenges faced by people living with HIV/AIDS. The curriculum offers relevant education on public health and reproductive health, helps identify cultural and social factors that contribute to the spread of HIV/AIDS, and offers faith-based institutions and organizations options for action. (May 2003)

Volume III: Home Care for People Living with HIV/AIDS: The Power of a Community

This manual seeks to empower family and community members with knowledge about living healthy with HIV/AIDS, providing care and support, and dealing with death and dying. Community members are urged to work together to find solutions to mitigate the impact of HIV/AIDS. (August 2003)

Other Training Manuals:

Social Mobilization for HIV/AIDS: A Training Manual

Based on CEDPA’s experience in Nepal, this manual promotes social mobilization as a means for communities to increase local participation and women’s empowerment in addressing HIV/AIDS. The five-day curriculum imparts skills in advocacy, behavior change communication and social marketing at national and grassroots levels. Although it was developed specifically for Nepal, the lessons are applicable to a variety of contexts. (May 2003)

Sustaining the Benefits: A Field Guide for Sustaining Reproductive and Child Health Services

This guide is a reference for NGO and program managers who wish to build enduring community-based programs. It explains the term “sustainability” and accompanies readers through a process of transforming that understanding into organizational action. Although it can stand alone, users of the guide may find it useful to explore the sustainability concepts in a workshop setting. (June 2003)

Reproductive Health Awareness: A Wellness, Self-Care Approach

This is a resource manual to design RH classes and training programs for a broad range of audiences. The purpose of the manual is to help develop the knowledge, attitudes and skills needed for good RH for people of all ages. The focus is on body awareness, self-care, gender, sexuality and interpersonal communications. The RHA approach follows an experiential learning model, with active participation and problem solving incorporated into the learning activities. (May 2003)
